BOOKS FOR CLASSROOM USE

I have collected and edited documents and articles for books that were custom published for classroom use by me and other professors by Pearson Publishing. They include:

Vietnam and America: Readings and Documents, 1999.

Reelin' In The Years: The United States Since 1945, 2000, Revised edition 2004.

Question Authority: Resistance and Protest in Colonial and Early US History, 2002.

War, Imperialism, & Dissent: Documents on US Foreign Policy, 2005.

IN PROGRESS

"Tet, Gold, and the End of Hegemony: The Military and Economic Crises of the Vietnam Era," a study of the economic crisis of the Vietnam Era which came to a head in 1968 as persistent balance-of-payments deficits and an outflow of gold created a global economic crisis, at the same time that the Tet Offensive revealed the failure of the U.S. military intervention into Vietnam. Currently writing. All research, in U.S. and U.K., completed. I have discussed this project with university presses and will submit when done.

A history of the Cold War abroad and at home. About half written. I have also discussed this project with university presses.

Study of the establishment and earliest phases of U.S. global power, from 1776 to 1914. Research mostly completed and first chapter completed.

"Afflict the Comfortable: Class Power, Uprising, and Rebellion in U.S. History," a history of protests and class struggle from the colonial period to the present, preface and chapter 1 completed.
